Port, school in land squabble

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County's Port and Harbor Commission will ask a circuit judge to decide the fate of 20 acres of land north of Hancock County High School that is listed after by Stennis Airport and the Hancock County School Board.

On Tuesday, supervisors called a brief special meeting to concur in a Monday decision by the P&H Commission.

Hal Walters, the Port and Harbor's Executive Director, told the four supervisors present, "The Commission is adamantly opposed to the location of that (a middle) school adjacent to the airport."

Walters revealed he met with School Supt. Terry Randolph last March to ask him to find an alternate site. Later he said he met with other school board members, but School Board President Cheryl Bennett told him the board was not looking for another site.

Because of the impasse, Walters said, "The Commission felt strongly that we have to move forward," (and intervene in current court proceedings).

With Board of Supervisors President Philip Moran absent, the other four members gave Walters the go-ahead to intervene.

Gaffney receives his second star

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Rear Admiral Paul Gaffney, Commander of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County and Chief of Naval Research, received his two-star shoulder board in U.S. Senator Trent Lott's Capitol office Thursday.

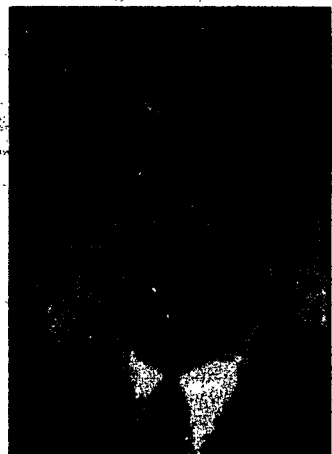

Adm. Gaffney, a former resident of Diamondhead, has had connections with the test facility in Hancock County for the past 20 years.

Also present for the ceremony were the Secretary of the Navy, John Dalton, Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Jay Johnson, his wife and daughter, and Rear Admiral (retired) Ed Snyder, the man responsible for bringing Naval oceanography to Stennis.

"Mississippi is very proud of our adopted son," Lott said. "Admiral Gaffney has done a great deal for Navy oceanography and for our state."

Diamondhead resident Tom Fredian, who was the public relations officer for the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command when he retired in 1996, after 22 years as a civilian with the Navy, following 21 years as a Naval officer, offered high praises for Admiral Gaffney.

Fredian said, "Adm. Gaffney really loves the Mississippi Gulf Coast. His association with the Coast goes back some 20 years, as he was Rear Admiral J. Edward Snyder's executive assistant when the Naval Oceanographic Program was moved from the Washington D.C. area to Hancock County."

RADM Gaffney

"Adm. Gaffney has been a regular visitor and resident of Hancock County for the past 20 years and really gave a lot of assistance and expertise to coastal activities," Fredian added.

District sets health fair, registration

BY BETSY GAGNET

Fourth of July is over and unbelievable as it may seem, the first day of school is only about a month away.

Soon parents will begin scurrying around trying to tackle all of the back-to-school tasks required before sending their little ones off to the classroom.

The Hancock County School District is trying to alleviate some of the mad rush by sponsoring the Hancock County Health Fair and Kindergarten Round-Up on Saturday, Aug. 2 from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Hancock High School common ground.

At the event, parents will be able to register pre-school and kindergarten students in the Hancock County School District.

Additionally, the Hancock County Health Department will be on site administering immunizations, as well as providing certificates of compliance.

According to Linda Salaun, Special Education Pre-School Coordinator for the Hancock County School District, the first two weeks of school are usually very chaotic. Through the fair, the school district wants to help parents complete registration prior to the first day of school.

"The first day of school, we're mobbed, and the second day, the health department is," Salaun said, explaining the "crunch" may continue for several weeks.

Groups combine to aid the elderly

BY ED LEPOMA

The groundwork was laid this week for formation of a TRIAD in Hancock County where chiefs of police, the sheriff and senior citizens work together to provide better emergency services to seniors and to help reduce crime against them.

The concept of a TRIAD was begun in 1988 when the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), and the National Sheriff's Association (NSA) signed a cooperative agreement to work together to reduce both criminal victimization and unwarranted fear of crime affecting older persons.

After almost 10 years, it has come to Hancock County, and Tuesday's meeting at the Depot in Bay St. Louis briefed volunteers and others involved on the initial steps that will be undertaken.

The engine that drives TRIAD is the S.A.L.T. Council (Seniors and Lawmen Together), where volunteers combine their talents to create and implement programs tailored to meet the needs of senior citizens in their own community.

Bay St. Louis Asst. Police Chief David Stepro said RSVP's Director Jo Ann Lagasse learned of the program last March while attending a conference in Alabama and recruited him and local Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) members to help form the advisory board.

Initially, Stepro said, emphasis will be twofold. There will be drives to have seniors register with the 911 service through the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, and to have each senior citizen place vital health and contact information on their refrigerators at home.

The Sheriff will circulate a letter to senior citizens who have recently dialed 911. The letter asks them to fill out a form and return a self-addressed envelope spelling out directions to their home in case of a medical emergency. The form will also ask the color of the home, animals that might be present and any medical problems anyone in the family might have. Seniors can request the form by calling the Sheriff's Office at 467-5101.

In addition, volunteers are being recruited to have seniors fill out another information card, which can be attached by a magnet to the individual's refrigerator at home. The information contained on the form will help emergency personnel to better serve the seniors, Stepro said.

The person's name and address is on the card, along with his or her's doctor's name and phone number. Also listed will be any health care plan a

Camper ban delayed

BY ED LEPOMA

Plans to ban campers and recreational vehicles from areas in Hancock County zoned for single family dwellings are temporarily on hold.

At the July 7th Board of Supervisors meeting, Board President Philip Moran moved, and Rocky Pullman seconded, to take under advisement a recommendation by the county Planning Commission that seeks to limit where campers and RV's can set up and how long they can stay.

District 3 Supervisor Lisa Coward went along with the motion, but got supervisors to promise the item would come back before the Board again at its July 22 recess meeting.

Planning Commission attorney John Scafide came before supervisors to ask them to concur in a resolution passed at a June 19 meeting. Three of five commissioners were present and they voted unanimously to amend the county's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance.

Scafide explained when supervisors passed the historic zoning ordinance last January, a clear definition of campers and RV's was inadvertently omitted, along with a listing of zones where they would be allowed. There was also no description of RV parks and where they might be allowed.

The Commission advertised and held a public hearing in early June on the proposed amendments, and no one came to speak for or against the proposals, Scafide reported.

As recommended, camper/trailers would be completely banned in all areas of the county zoned single family residential and some zones that are set aside for commercial and industrial purposes. The vehicles would be allowed as a "conditional use" in two and multi-family residential areas and in all parts of the county zoned A-1, Agricultural.

Recreational vehicle parks would only be allowed as a "conditional use" in two and multi-family residential areas, in A-1 areas and in neighbor-

*Eileen's Dreams
 On Butterfly Wings*

She had dreams as we all do; they were in vivid colors of orange, yellow and blue.

She's no longer here to see them through, but family and friends will make sure they do.

Her dreams were but a chosen few in a cocoon with a golden hue. The dreams were never wishes on a star, but prayers on wings that have traveled from near to far.

The wings are light, but steadfast and strong, like the beautiful notes in her favorite song. They could easily fit on an angel's wing, but Eileen wanted her dreams on butterfly wings.

She has dreams as we all do; they are flying colors of orange, yellow and blue.

Public Hearing Focus on shrimp viruses

The shrimp industry has grown at a tremendous rate since the 1950's, and consumer demand for shrimp continues to grow at a rate of 7-9 percent annually. Because shrimp are in such demand, the wild shrimp population in recent years has been supplemented by the expansion of shrimp aquaculture and by the importation of foreign shrimp which are processed in the United States.

Shrimp aquaculture is the growing and harvesting of shrimp in man-made environmentally controlled ponds. Many of the shrimp grown in this manner are foreign species. Some of these aquaculture operations have experienced outbreaks of disease caused by shrimp viruses.

These outbreaks cause economic losses for the aquaculture industry and may also result in the introduction of the viruses in the coastal waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Shrimp viruses may potentially be introduced into the Gulf's waters through wastes generated by the processing of shrimp from foreign countries and through use of foreign shrimp as fish bait.

Although these viruses pose no threat to human health, recent outbreaks on U.S. shrimp farms, the appearance of diseased shrimp in U.S. commerce, and new information on the susceptibility of shrimp and other crustaceans, such as crawfish and crabs, to these viruses have prompted calls for investigation of the actual risks to domestic resources.

The Joint Subcommittee on Aquaculture (JSA), Office of Science and Technology Policy, has released a report describing the potential impacts of shrimp viruses on cultured shrimp and on wild shrimp populations in the Gulf of Mexico and southeastern U.S. Atlantic coastal waters.

The report is entitled, "An Evaluation of Shrimp Virus Impacts on Cultured Shrimp and on Wild Shrimp Populations in the Gulf of Mexico and Southeastern U.S. Atlantic Coastal Waters." This report has been prepared by an ad hoc working group of the JSA composed of representatives from the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS), the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Copies of this shrimp virus report may be obtained by contacting the National Marine Fisheries Service at <http://kingfish.ssp.nmfs.gov/bit/0it.html>. Comments on the report may be provided at any of scheduled public meetings listed below, or you may mail your comments (an original and three copies) to Mr. Jerome Erbacher, Office of Industry and Trade, Room 3675, SSMC3, NMFS, 1315 East-West Highway, Silver Spring, MD 20910, or fax to (301) 713-2384.

The economic significance of the shrimp virus problem should not be understated. The U.S. shrimp industry is a $3 billion a year industry. A substantial portion of this industry includes harvesting of wild shrimp (200 million pounds of shrimp (tails) annually). Additionally, imports of shrimp in the U.S. for processing exceed 600 million pounds (tails) annually.

There will be shrimp virus public hearing along the Coast which will include the conclusions of the report followed by informative presentations by state officials, shrimp association members, environmentalists, and shrimp industry representatives. All meetings begin at 9 a.m.; the afternoon will be left open to the public for comments. The shrimp virus public hearings will be held at the following dates/locations:

Stennis said, "Adm. Gaffney was one of the most hands-on and actively involved of the community Navy Commanders who have been stationed at Stennis, and his promotion is most well deserved. His activities in the community were not limited just to Hancock County, but to the Gulf Coast and Mississippi as a whole."

"Anything for the good of the area, Admiral Gaffney was more than willing to provide any assistance he could," Treutel added.

Adm. Gaffney was instrumental in the formation of the Partners of Stennis. He was also a graduate of Leadership Gulf Coast and a member of the Hancock Medical Center's Foundation board of directors.

Lott said that as commander of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis, Gaffney has led the way in making Mississippi a world leader in operational oceanography.

Gaffney has broadened

Naval oceanography's impact beyond just Navy support, establishing it at the forefront of our nation's efforts. In 1995, the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis was designated the international center of excellence in oceanographic data basing under Gaffney's command.

Gaffney is also recognized for spearheading the new cooperation between academia, industry, and the Navy on oceanography.

"Serving as the principal advisor for the Navy's and Mississippi's involvement in the National Oceanographic Partnership Program, Admiral Gaffney helped to bring $2.4 million in grant funding to several universities and agencies throughout our state," Lott said. "Mississippi, the Navy, and the nation are all winners as a result of this project, and the dedicated leadership of Paul Gaffney."

Gaffney's command at Stennis employs 1,250 people. The Navy contributes $50 million in contracts, $100 million in salaries, with Stennis employees in turn generating approximately $95 million to the local economy.

Gaffney is married to the former Linda Meyers, and the couple has one daughter.

Ohio man drowns in Jourdan River

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

An Ohio man apparently died of accidental drowning Saturday in the Jourdan River, Hancock County Criminal Investigator Glen Strong reports.

Strong identified the victim as Gary L. Graham, 34, of Dayton, Ohio.

The sheriff's office received a call at approximately 3:30 p.m. Saturday reporting a possible drowning had occurred. The state Department of Marine Resources (DMR) Dive Rescue and Hancock County Dive Rescue unit began searching for the body, which was recovered at approximately 6 p.m., Strong said.

Graham, his two young children and a 13-year old son of the boat's owner, Adrian Delaney Sr., of Slidell, had been touring the river and swimming in different areas. Everyone in the boat except Graham had life jackets, Strong said.

The incident occurred just east of the Crump Lake in the Jourdan.

An autopsy was performed Monday, and a report of the findings should be available within a week, Strong said. "We believe the autopsy will show it was an accidental drowning, as Graham was said to be able to swim."

To love and to be loved is the greatest happiness in existence!

Stay cool and have a great week!

Award-winning author signs books

Award-winning Mississippi author Lewis Nordan will be at Bookends Bookstore, Bay St. Louis, at 7 p.m. Friday, for a reading and signing of his latest book Lightning Song.

Bookends, 111 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, is Nordan's last stop on his national tour, which has taken him from New York to San Francisco, Los Angeles to Washington D.C., Chicago to Nashville.

Lightning Song (Algonquin Books, $19.95), takes the reader to the Dearman's llama farm, where 12-year-old Leroy just discovered the Playboys his Uncle Harris has hidden in the attic. It's as if he'd been struck by lightning! However, not all the lightning in Lightning Song is metaphorical.

That summer the Dearman home seems to have an infinity for fireworks, both emotional and heavenly. Mama and Uncle Harris seem to want Leroy and his little sisters out of the house, going so far as to sign them all up for baton twirling lessons. Blending all the elements of small-town Southern life with "the music of the American soul," Nordan brings us safely across that abyss of early adolescence to the sheltering harbor of a family's love.

Susan Daigre, Bookends owner said, "Nordan won the Mississippi Humanities Prize for Fiction this year and is always a welcome guest at Bookends."

New weightloss program offered

The Kidney Foundation has created a satirical look at weightloss through the Kidney Cars Donation Program. The program is available to assist Mississippians "remove a minimum of 2,000 ugly and unwanted pounds" by donating running, sluggish or unwilling-to-move vehicles, including automobiles, boats, trucks and vans.

If you answer "yes" to any of the following, you may need this program:

- * Is your motor's diet saturated with oil?
- * Does your carbo hydrate?
- * Have you lost the spring in your seat?

This weightloss program energizes and stimulates owners of old automotive bodies with tired engines to rid themselves of "unwanted pounds" by donating these vehicles to the National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi.

Your vehicle will be towed free of charge, and the donor will be provided with a tax deductible receipt. Not only will you be shedding "unwanted pounds," but you will be giving new hope to kidney patients.

To donate a vehicle, or for additional information, contact Gail Sweat at the National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi, Jackson and Central Mississippi residents, call 961-3611. Coastal area residents, call 1-800-282-1592. All other Mississippi residents call 1-800-488-2277.

USM electronic sign will serve as message center

The University of Southern Mississippi will erect an electronic sign at the bustling southeast corner of the campus this fall to serve as a message center for students and the general public.

"It will definitely be used to advertise all of our arts and athletic activities, and the city also can use it to advertise their events," USM Business and Finance Vice President Jim Henderson said of the planned sign, which will be located at the busy intersection of Hwy. 49 and Hardy Street.

"We're trying to inform people so they can better avail themselves of all the opportunities we have on the USM campus," he added, noting the College of the Arts stages some "200 events a year" in addition to "all of the ball games" placed on campus.

Henderson said the 19-foot sign, when placed atop a planned 4 1/2-foot concrete-and-steel fence, would tower more than 23 feet above the site between US-49 and a campus service road just east of the Alumni House.

The project's total estimated cost of $125,000, he noted, would be defrayed by some $60,000 already raised by the university's 13 fraternities and 11 sororities. The USM Interfraternity Council raised the money during the past two years by raffling off two automobiles at university football and basketball games for $5 a ticket. Henderson said the remainder of the money would come from USM Auxiliary Services.

"Students wanted to raise money for some worthwhile project and this is what was finally decided upon," said Henderson.

"We hope this will be a comprehensive message-center link between the university and the students, and the university and the community," Tom Shoemaker, dean of students and director of Greek Life, said at the outset of the fund-raising campaign in 1994.

Royce Pierce, USM's facilities planning officer, said the project would get under way within the next two months and predicted it would take another two months to construct the sign and fence, and complete special landscaping.

"We are not going to lose any live oak trees," Pierce said, noting that one water oak probably would have to come down to make room for the project, which has been approved by the city and the Mississippi Department of Transportation.

He said the electronic-programmable sign's messages would be visible from all directions along the adjacent, heavily traveled thoroughfare. The fence, designed to extend about 30 feet on either side of the sign, will consist of brick columnar posts and black-iron fencing.

"This will give us a visual edge and add some security," said Pierce, a registered architect with the USM Physical Plant.

BellSouth announces $100,000 chamber grant

BellSouth announced it will fund a $100,000 grant program designed to stimulate the development or strengthen the presence of small businesses in towns and communities throughout the nine-state region.

As part of the company's new campaign, "Nobody Knows a Neighbor Like a Neighbor," BellSouth's Chamber Grant Program invites local and community Chambers of Commerce to apply for one of ten $10,000 grants to be awarded this fall. "BellSouth has long recognized the crucial role Chamber of Commerce play in the growth and success of small businesses in our region," said Rick Stewart, regional director.

"We've structured this program to recognize and reward chambers for their efforts along these lines. And we believe our commitment to this project is indicative of our desire to support the good work they do."

All recognized Chambers of Commerce in areas served by BellSouth in Mississippi are eligible to nominate their small business-focused program for one of the $10,000 grants. One grant will be awarded in each of BellSouth's nine states, and the tenth will be awarded to a Chamber of Commerce in the region at large.

Winning programs can include any of the following applications: expansion or upgrade of technology supporting a chamber operation; programs to attract or retain small businesses; enhancement of an existing, successful small business chamber program; funding a multi-media presentation that showcases chamber areas and/or promotes small business; aiding minority/women small business development; or establishing an information and resource bureau that assists individuals starting new businesses. A chamber could also combine any of the above in its application.

"The grant program emphasizes BellSouth's commitment to the communities in which it operates," Stewart noted. "It also highlights the company's long-standing involvement with Chambers of Commerce throughout the region."

Application packages are being distributed to Chambers of Commerce on the Gulf Coast. The deadline for applications is Monday, Aug. 11; winners will be announced the week of Oct. 13. Chambers of Commerce that have not received a package by mid-July and would like to can contact Stewart at BellSouth at (601) 868-5009.

BellSouth is a $19 billion communications service company. It provides telecommunications, wireless communications, directory advertising and publishing and other information services to more than 27 million customers in 18 countries worldwide.

Its telephone operations provide service over one of the most modern telecommunications networks in the world for approximately 22 million telephone lines in a nine-state region that includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Georgia-Pacific reports second quarter earnings

Georgia-Pacific Corp. reported net income of $27 million (30 cents per share) for the three months ended June 30, 1997, compared with 1996 second quarter income of $5 million (6 cents per share).

The company reported operating profits of $218 million in the 1997 second quarter, versus $177 million in the 1996 period.

The 1996 second quarter results included a $74 million pre-tax (after-tax 50 cents per share) charge to earnings for the company's voluntary early retirement program and an after-tax loss of $5 million (5 cents per share) from the early retirement of assets.

Georgia-Pacific's pulp and paper business reported operating profits of $12 million for the three-month period, compared with profits of $33 million a year ago. Operating profits in the company's building products business were $203 million in the quarter, versus $141 million last year.

The 1996 second quarter operating profits included pretax charges of $40 million in the pulp and paper segment and $34 million in the building products segment for the voluntary early retirement program.

The company's building products business was impacted in the most recent quarter by an operating loss of $9 million in its distribution division, compared with a profit of $1 million a year ago.

pared with a 1996 second quarter loss of $34 million that included $35 million of restructuring charges.

Sales for the 1997 second quarter were $3.3 billion, equal to the 1996 period. The company generated cash from operations of $277 million and made capital expenditures of $139 million during the latest quarter.

For the first half of 1997, net income was $117 million ($1.28 per share), versus net income of $55 million (61 cents per share) a year ago. The 1997 first quarter included an after-tax net gain of $80 million (88 cents per share) on the sale of assets.

Second quarter 1996 results were adversely affected by the charges for the voluntary early retirement program and the loss on the retirement of debt described above.

Chief Garcia re-elected southern vice-president

David A. Garcia of Waveland was elected to serve a second term as southern vice-president of the Mississippi Fire Chiefs Association June 19 at the 60th annual Chiefs Conference in Natchez.

He will also serve as chairman of the Mississippi Fire Chiefs Association Audit Committee.

Chief Garcia has been a member of the association for the past 11 years. He has served Waveland as fire chief for the past 11 years and served the fire department for the past 19 years.

Garcia has been employed with the City of Waveland for a total of 22 years, which include serving with other departments for the City of Waveland.

Garcia said he is very proud to represent the fire chiefs in the Mississippi Fire Chiefs Association and is always looking for ways to improve the fire services for the firefighters in Mississippi.

Garcia said he shared the same interest and looks forward to working with all fire service officials in Mississippi by supporting training, fire safety education and state legislation that helps improve the fire services for the state of Mississippi.

person might be covered under and his or her Medicare Number, a date of birth and Social Security number.

The card will also contain names of persons to contact in any emergency; allergies to any medicines the patient might have; major illness; current medications and the daily dosage.

Stepro emphasized that there is no charge to register with the Sheriff's Department or for the refrigerator card. After Aug. 8, the card can be obtained by contacting Lagasse at RSVP headquarters. The phone number is 467-9204.

Further down the line, Stepro said there will be efforts for speakers to address seniors on how to avoid telephone scams, door-to-door solicitations by roofers and how to avoid others who tend to prey on the elderly.

The Hancock/Harrison County District Attorney's office will also provide information on how a victim of a crime might recover some monies from the state if he or she suffers bodily harm at the hands of a robber or during some other assault.

RSVP will also be distributing the refrigerator registration cards at an upcoming Volunteer Fair, scheduled at the Depot in Bay St. Louis Aug. 8.

Stepro said he is also checking on grant funds that might be available from the state to begin an R-U-O-K program in Hancock County.

The grant would help the Sheriff's Department install a computerized phone calling system which calls individuals daily who register that are living alone or who are homebound or handicapped. It asks the individual if they are well, and if not, automatically dispatches emergency personnel to check on that person.

Attending the session Tuesday were Sheriff Ronnie Peterson and Gloria Tartavouille; Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil and Stepro, along with Bay Policewoman Shea Beal. Waveland's Police Department was not represented, but has agreed to get involved in the program, officials said.

Others attending included: Cindy Vernon, representing the Chamber of Commerce; Janet McQueen of Hancock Medical Center; Donette Lee of the District Attorney's Office; Mike Cuevas, the Mayor's office, Bay St. Louis; Dr. Jim Bills, Diamondhead AARP; Bob Ortis, Bay Hancock County AARP and Dot Feaheny, RSVP.

Attorney Ronnie Artigues said he would file the intervention motion Tuesday afternoon in Circuit Court to block eminent domain proceedings already filed by the School Board. He said the motion would first ask the court to stay or delay a pre-trial hearing on the petition scheduled for Aug. 4.

The petition will ask for a speedy trial, Artigues said, and the Circuit Judge will ultimately decide who has first claims to the property — the School Board or the Port and Harbor Commission.

At its regular monthly meeting Monday, The P&H Commission went into a 45-minute closed-door executive session. Commissioners emerged to announce they voted unanimously to intervene in eminent domain proceedings already filed by the School Board, which wants the land to build a new $9.6 million middle school.

The P&H Commission authorized the firm of Gex and Artigues to represent its interests, and also authorized Executive Director Hal Walters or his assistant, Bill Stovall, to get an independent appraisal on the coveted parcel of land.

Although there are no plans on the drawing board, Walters has said that the parcel of land is vital to the future of Stennis Airport. He said the site could ultimately be used for an air cargo terminal or for a business park.

Walters has also argued that because of the air strip, the High School should not have been built so close to Stennis. He said an additional middle school would only add to the danger.

Bennett has contended it would be too costly to find another site for the Middle School because seventh and eighth grade students would have to be transported from any new facility to the Tech Prep Center, which is located next to the sprawling high school complex. She said plans were for the middle school to also utilize the high school gym, football and baseball fields, thus eliminating the need to build additional sports facilities at a new middle school.

Records show the land is owned by Joseph V. Riccobono and Barbara Cohn.

Making the use in some areas "conditional" would require applicants to pay a $35 fee and come before the planning commission to obtain approval.

Commissioners said the requirement would allow the county to get a handle on the proliferation of campers and RVs that people are living in full-time in parts of Hancock County.

Commissioners want to restrict how long a camper or RV can stay on a lot.

Present federal regulations, which only governs such vehicles in the floodplain areas of the county, allow a stay of 180 days, but Commissioners feel a stay of six months at a time encourages people to live fulltime in the vehicles.

munizations, children can have their hearing and sight tested, and have basic health screenings and parents can receive information on health and nutrition and on programs available which provide assistance on dealing with developmental disabilities.

The hearing tests will be provided by the school district and the Hancock County Lions Club will be on hand to do the eye tests, according to Salaun.

Hancock County Medical Center will provide basic health screenings such as height, weight and blood pressure, in addition to providing information on health issues.

Salaun said the fire department and the sheriff's department will present safety programs.

Representatives from the WIC Program are scheduled to provide nutritional information and snacks for the kids.

Salaun said the aim of the event is to have kids ready to start school when they start school. Through the testing, if the children need glasses or other things it can be determined, and taken care of, prior to the beginning of school, she explained.

To help out parents, there will be supervised activities and games for children, so kids are occupied while the necessary forms are completed.

bags and then they have to stand around for two hours (for registration to be completed)," Salaun said. "We are trying to make it as convenient and as attractive as possible to the parents."

Note: In order to attend kindergarten a child must be five years old by September 1, 1997. In order to register, two proofs of residency, immunization records and a birth certificate, must be provided. Organizers of the event also urge a copy of the child's social security card be provided. There is no charge for the registration. There will be no charge for the immunizations given by the health department at the event.

Butterflies love desirable 'weeds'

By Norman Winter
Horticulturist
Central Mississippi Research and Extension Center

Weeds by any other name often do smell as sweet. The name "weed" conjures up thoughts of nutgrass, Johnson grass, crabgrass and dandelions. Weeds we love to hate.

Butterfly weed and Joe Pye weed are at least two instances where taxonomists or botanists gave plants named that turn off gardeners, but butterflies (and many gardeners) love these two Mississippi natives.

Butterfly weed is known botanically as Asclepias tuberosa. It is treasured by butterflies for its nectar and as a larval source of food. This plant is in the milk weed family but does not produce the same milky sap as the other family members.

With bright orange flowers, this perennial is adapted to sandy soils but performs well in loamy, well-drained soils. While you may be tempted to dig one from the wild, be forewarned that they are difficult to transplant because the tuberous tap root breaks easily.

Luckily, many garden centers across the state have container-grown plants ready for our purchase.

In addition to Asclepias tuberosa, there is a gorgeous species with red petals and yellow hoods known as Asclepias curassavica. It is native to South America but has found itself at home in much of the South.

The Asclepias lanceolata is also a showy perennial with orange-red flowers and at home in moist soils like ditches or marshy areas.

Once you start growing the butterfly weed, you will never want to be without them. At least six of our prettiest butterflies love them — the eastern black swallowtail, tiger swallowtail, monarch, queen, great spangled fritillary and checkered white.

Butterfly weed produces flowers for months and is best when grouped together in a clump. They are always showy, never gaudy.

Joe Pye weed is the other so erroneously named weed. This gorgeous perennial is known in older wildflower books as Eupatorium fistulosum. Sweet Joe Pye weed is identified as Eupatorium purpureum. The weed designation comes from a vanilla fragrance when it is bruised or slightly injured.

Others found in parts of the southeast are E. dubium and E. maculatum. They are in the family with more prestigious flowers like daisies.

Legend has it that Joe Pye saw an Indian use one of the plants to cure a fever. However, it is not known to have any curative properties.

There are a couple of commercial producers of Joe Pye weed in Mississippi, but it is still almost impossible to find at garden centers.

These are tall plants reaching 5 to 7 feet that can be used at the back of the perennial border or as a divider like. The flowers are produced abundantly from July to September.

Animal intruders lead to problems

Homeowners must face continuous efforts to keep their homes in good condition, and when animal invasions occur, people struggle to win a battle against nature.

Residents often face small intruders, such as mice, wanting to share their homes, but other unwelcome guests may also become home invaders.

"Squirrels, raccoons, bats and birds will occasionally come into homes that have unsecured vents, chimneys or other small openings," said Phil Mastrangelo, state director of Animal Damage Control.

Many people deal with problems caused by wild animals, but problems inside can be the most disturbing and damaging. The best way to handle animal invasions is to prevent them and quickly resolve any problems that develop.

"The first step for solving an animal invasion problem is to determine how the animals enter," Mastrangelo said. Once they are in a house, use live traps to catch them unharmed.

It is also recommended to prevent climbing animals such as squirrels from coming inside by trimming trees away from walls. Also secure all openings that lead to the interior with heavy screen.

Raccoons can also be a nuisance and cause damage when they enter attics or chimneys. Securely fastening a heavy screen over the top of chimneys will prevent access and birds from nesting.

One of the most disturbing intruders is the bat. Bats can squeeze through narrow slits and cracks. Some people construct bat houses to provide a roost that may deter bats from coming indoors.

When any animal becomes a problem, check state and federal laws before deciding what to do. Always guard against contact that may result in the transmission of disease.

News from McLeod

Well, we made it through the Fourth of July with over 3,000 people visiting McLeod Water Park in just four days. There were very little problems with no injuries reported, and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

Thanks to Phil Johnson and Donnie Gambler and the Hancock County Sheriff Department's security and water patrol. Our hats are off to you folks.

Also, G. J. Cameron and Andy, game wardens with the life and Fisheries were on patrol on and off all weekend on the Jourdan River. All this sure makes my job easier, and I really appreciate your support.

I would like to thank my staff for a job well done, too. It seems like they always come through with all the tasks at hand, and I do appreciate them very much.

Perry Mitchell of Bay St. Louis and Raymond Spiers from Lumberton are with us for a couple of weeks. They are known for catching their share of large fish, and maybe we'll have something to report in our next installment.

Here is a photo of Mr. Rueben Deschamps of the Standard-Dedeaux Community with a nice catch of catfish and bream.

Roland Lee

He fishes the old-fashioned way, with a cane pole.

Hope to have a few other things to write about next time. So, until then, we invite you out for some good fishing, and some fun camping. Or just come for the day and picnic at one of our covered pavilions or bar-b-que at any of the grills dotting the park.

We enjoy having everyone, so come and see us real soon.

St. Louis Cardinals Sun Coast racing

Although things seemed to be shaping up for an outstanding night of racing at Sun Coast Speedway in Pass Christian last weekend, Mother Nature had other plans.

Mid-way through the lap session the track was deluged with an afternoon thunderstorm, which forced the cancelation of the remainder of the program. This was to have been the second round of three summer championships.

A good field of IMCA cars were on hand since the speedway has become a sanctioned track for this class of cars.

The Winged Outlaw Fuel Injected Sprints will be the featured attraction for Saturday, July 19, along with a regular racing program.
